SWISS to commence new Zurich-Oslo service

SWISS is to offer a twice-daily service between Zurich and Oslo from mid-June onwards. The flights will be operated using Airbus A319 equipment. With the two new frequencies and a further codeshare flight operated by Star Alliance partner SAS, SWISS customers will enjoy a wide range of services to and from Norway's capital.

SWISS will be providing a twice-daily service between Zurich and Oslo from 19 June. The new flights will further expand the range of SWISS connections to and from Scandinavia: Oslo as a new destination in the region is joining Copenhagen and Stockholm. The new services will also offer SWISS customers from Norway a wide choice of convenient onward connections in Zurich throughout Europe and beyond. The two new frequencies will be supplemented by a daily codeshare service* operated by SAS.

"We want to take full and active advantage of market opportunities in difficult economic times, too," says Harry Hohmeister, chief network and distribution officer at SWISS. "Norway is a major trading partner for Switzerland, and many Swiss companies have offices and operations there."
